Ostrapark

Built in 1906 by the famous architect and planning commissioner, Hans Erlwein, what was once the city's slaughterhouse has now been transformed into a new centre for event culture. A heritage listed site, the 'Erlwein-Capitol' includes 1,500 square metres of naturally lit event space on one level. Subject to requirements, the glass doors facing the water can be retracted, affording guests access to the expansive grounds and the lake house. Furthermore, the terrace and lakeside meadow with pier and illuminated fountain can also be utilised.
